tic in His Praise-Steady and Substantial Growth.

A rumor having reached the Appear that Mr. F. H. Cossitt, now of New York that Mr. F. H. Cossitt, now of New York, who owns a large amount of property in this city, intended to convert the old Galt House, on the corner of Beale and Main streets, into an opera-house, a representative of the APPEAL called upon him last evening at his room in the Gayoso Hotel, where he has been quartered for two or three days. Mr. Cossitt said a number of gentlemen had suggested to him the necessity for centrally located located, and had spoke of the old Galt House in that connection but he had not made up his mind yet upon the subject. But at the same time Mr. Cossitt was enthusiastic in his praise of the enterprise of Memphis business men and entertained the brightest hopes for he future of the city.

"You are said to have been the FIRST WHOLESALE DRY GOODS MAN the city, Mr. Cossitt," remarked the Appear man.

"I believe so," replied that gentleman after a pause. "I landed here away back in 1832, and have kept up a very close acquaintance with Memphis ever since. I have been here very often, my last visit being in May last," advisedly of the city, and probably have made up your mind about her future?"

"Yes," said Mr. Cossitt, "as I remarked before, I have always taken a great deal of interest in Memphis, and have WATCHED HER GROWTH very carefully. She has gradually built up a trade which makes her the foundation for a great city. Memphis already handles, you might say, one-twelfth of the cotton crop, and that is saying a great deal for one city, even if nothing more is accomplished. With 500,000 bales of cotton already at her command, it will be a comparatively easy matter to get 500,000 more. After a while Memphis will get every bale of cotton between this and the Yazoo. But great cities are not made in a day, and it will take a little time. Mem-

Yazoo. But great cities are not made in a day, and it will take a little time. Memphis has a greater and RICHER TERRITORY tributary to her than any other city south of St. Louis, and since the opening of the Kansas City road her trade is resching out in a direction altogether new and one that promises to be very profitable. None of us had any idea of what advantage the Kansas City road would be to Memphis, but the indications now are that it will open to the city a big area of country away beyond Kansas City, in the far West. And while there is no doubt that Memphis is doing a phis is doing a VERY LARGE BUSINESS in proportion to her capital, money is be-ing rapidly accumulated here."

"Do you ever hear Memphis discussed abroad?" was asked.

"Very often, and in the most complimentary way," Mr. Cossitt replied. "A day or two ago a New Orleans man said to me, 'Why, Cossitt, do you know that town of yours is getting to be the greatest city in the South?' and not long since I met Gen.

Thomas, who was very enthusiastic in his praise of Memphis. He declared it to be one of the livest cities he ever saw. All of the old talk about the city—the damaging talk, I mean—has died away. One never

"Why?" was asked.

"Well, all I can say is she is wrong in her calculations if she did not."

"What are you driving at?"

"Didn't you feel the shock this morning? Aren't the foundations of the Court.

When the War Horse had resched this stage he indulged in a very undignified and utterly reprehensible habit he has of drawing down the lid over his left eye.

"But enough of foolishness" he declared, shaking out his tangled focks and drawing himself up with an air which portended something awful. "Mr. Jack Walsh has declared war—and upon those who have been his allies and with whom the motto has been, united we stand, divided we THE St. Louis provision market closed THE Signal Service predicts frost for this locality this morning.

There were other people talking about it besides old War Horse, and from everything that can be gathered, the chasm is not at all likely to be bridged. Mr. Walsh has cut loose from the hooks of steel which have bound him for so long, and he and his friends are freely declaring their intention to make a bitter fight. In his usual quiet way, Mr. James R. Algee, city editor of the Avalanche, surprised his friends last Sunday by slipping off to his old home, Huntingdon, Tenn., and taking unto himself a wife. His bride, Miss Ellen McEwen, an accomplished and elegant young lady, belongs to one of the best families of Huntingdon, and will be cordially received in Memphis, where the groom has a host of warm personal friends. The wedding was a very quiet affair, the ceremony being performed by the flav. Dr. A.W. Hawkins, in the presence of the near relatives of the bride and groom.

is a power in Pinch. Tou see, some time ago they had a meeting up there to elect delegates. Jack got up and called the meeting to order, and then read a list of names of delegates. 'All-in-favor-of-this-list-say-aye-and-all-opposed-no-the-ayes-have-it.' Whereupon Thiers jumped up and said only three men voted aye, and he demanded a ballot. They had an election and Jack was shut out. He only got into the convention by obtaining a proxy—wherefore Thiers has carried the load of his displeasure to this good day. Well, you know they have been handing around a few positions in the postoffic quietly of late, and night before last Mr. Thiers was made registering clerk: Among those who urged his appointment were certain prominent county intment were certain prominent count
